The email server error message means that your server doesn't allow the process to continue with an invalid domain. When requesting the email server to send notification email, TurboFTP or TurboFTP Sync Service will send a HELO command with your computer's domain name. Now the email server doesn't think the domain it is sending is valid. Please check if you have enabled DNS in TCP/IP properties of your network configuration. Otherwise you may check the computer name, under Network properties, if it is a legitimate one.
